5.1 Conclusion

Basically, language has many certain functions which are used based on human needs, such as a device to express our self, as a communication device, for social adaptation on environments, and as a device for doing a social control.

However, it has many variations since the language users are also varieties, and used in some situation as well in some particular societies, there is kind of agreement to differentiate two language varieties based on its use. Firstly, high language variety that is used informal situation such as in speech, education, official letters and science books. Secondly the low language variety that is used informal situation such as with friend, family, and personal letters. It showed that the language usage in society shows some slang expressions have wide variety of uses they are colloquial, professional and social jargon (jargon, argot and cant), vulgarism and dialectal.

Furthermore, slang is an aspect of social life that is subject to style, especially among younger. It can be used by those inside a group who share ideas and attitudes as a way of distinguishing themselves from others as a marker of group identity during a limited stage of life. However, the used of slang varieties within the younger social group. Based on the result of this research indicate of each utterance of the speaker used dominant slang colloquial. Colloquial expressions are usually spoken and are often thought of as being direct, earthy, or efficient. Not only does this make their communication more efficient, but also to reinforce their friendship.

5.2 Suggestion

Based on the result of the research, there are some suggestions for the next researchers who are interested in doing similar research. This research give contribution to comprehend language variation especially types of slang. Furthermore, studying about language variations, English learners can apply slang when communicated to each other's. Even though it is still considered as negative and impolite for the used but I hoped by reading this research learners realize that slang is one of English varieties exist and used in social life. Since elementary school until now we are study about English standard and there is nothing wrong if studying of English non-standard for example slang. Therefore there are many aspects about slang language that can be analyzed by another researcher.
