

CHAPTER V

CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTION

5.1 Conclusions

Based on the analysis of research about contrastive analysis of derivational prefixes between Atinggola and English language have been done. I stated some resulted of the research, those are:

1. Both of Atinggola and English derivational prefixes there are have similarities and difference in form of sentence.
2. In the sentence of Atinggola and English have class of word that change part of speech of the word and does not change class of word.
3. Most of all prefixes in Atinggola language are used “Tense marker” , except prefix po-, nee-, ho-.
4. In English no tense marker when the words uses derivational prefixes

5.2 Suggestion

Based on the conclusion above, I would like to give some suggestion as follow:

1. In comparison two languages, we should be using contrastive analysis technique, it can make be easy to found up the difference and similarities between two languages. Besides, contrastive analysis can make a clear description about system, from and rule of two language.

2. The readers should know more about the difference and similarities between two or more language, because by recognizing the difference and similarities of two or more language, make the reader easy to learn the language.
3. The other researchers may conduct further research by using the contrastive analysis technique in another area, such as phonology, vocabulary, grammar, pronunciation and etc, as to make a contribution for English education in formal school.
