Chapter V

Conclusions and Suggestion

Conclusions

Based on the explanation in chapter IV, the result of this research can be concluded as some similarities and differences of noun phrase in English and Atinggola language. Firstly, The form of English noun phrase consist of Pre modification [determiner, identifier, numerals, adjective phrase and noun modifier], Post modification [relative clause, non-finite clause, adverb phrase, prepositional phrase]. Secondly, The form of Atinggola noun phrase comprise of Pre modification [determiner, verb], Post modification [identifier, numerals, adjective, adverb phrase and prepositioanl phrase]. Thirdly, In English and Atinggola language have some similarities, they are; determiner is placed before noun head, prepositional phrase and adverb phrase are located after noun head. Fourthly, In English and Atinggola language also have some differences such as; in English language possessive, demonstrative, numerals, and adjective are placed before noun head. Otherwise, in Atinggola language they are located after noun head. In addition, Atinggola have verb in pre modification of noun phrase, whereas some cases in English verb is cannot accepted in pre modification or post modification of noun phrase.

Suggestions

Based on the conclusion above, researcher would like to give some suggestion to the readers they are; In comparison two languages, we should be using contrastive analysis technique to find out the similarities and differences between two languages.

On that ground, it will make the readers easier to learn about the language. Futhermore, recommended to the readers that contrastive analysis about noun phrase between English and Atinggola will increase our understanding about each language, especially to the students from Atinggola, because this reserach is discussed about structure of Atinggola language which comparative with English. Therefore, it will be benefit for them. Moreover, this research can be a reference to the research about syntax study. This skripsi purpose to make the readers easier to learn about Atinggola language, if they have some interesting point to be applyed to their interesting content.