

CHAPTER V

CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTION

Chapter five presented about some conclusions the researcher could take according to the result of my research, and also some suggestion the researcher would give in relation with my research and for education.

Conclusion

Based on the effectiveness of reciprocal teaching method in improving students' speaking skills the researcher would like to present several conclusions as follows:

From the result of this research, in which $t_{count} \leq t_{list}$, $4.49 \leq 2.045$. The researcher conclude that reciprocal teaching as a method of teaching can improve student' speaking ability. It could be viewed fro the percentage before and after the method application. After giving the treatment, speaking skill of the whole students' were improved from 45.33% to 62.66%. It indicates that reciprocal teaching is a good method to be an applied in the class for speaking improvement. In addition this method is more effective for students have communication with are students. This is because communications are use to often through this method so practically its give positive influence for speaking improvement.

Suggestion

Based on the result of this study, it was revealed that the reciprocal teaching method has shown an effective way for improving the students' speaking ability. Therefore, it is suggested that the method of reciprocal teaching can be considered to be used in teaching English. The researcher should in learning English; the teachers must apply this method in order to make the students become more competitive in learning speaking. This method required more time for the teachers to apply, thus it takes process to achieve. There should be continues actions from the teacher to develop this method, thus the maximal result will be gotten. Moreover, the teachers need to be able to explore more towards this method in order to make any improvement to the way of the reciprocal teaching method should be conducted. Besides, this method is not only for junior high school but also in degree of university. Thus, it is expected that the teachers and all the educational stakeholders can put an attention to this method in order to achieve an improvement to the students' speaking ability. It is also expected that the reciprocal teaching can be introduced as a good method for all teachers and students.
