

Chapter V: Conclusion and Recommendation

In this chapter, there were 2 parts the researcher explains such as the conclusion and the recommendation. The first is the conclusions of this research will be explained, the second is as a recommendation of this research.

Conclusion

To conclude this research there were some aspects as a main point in this research. First is, motivation is one of important things to drive a person to do something with a goal to achieve. And also, motivation is a power from inside or outside of a person. Motivation from inside is closed with a person because of needs, expectancy, and interest. Whereas motivation from outside also is closed with a person because of encouragement, environment, and reward.

Second is based on the result in research finding students' motivation in learning English in non-formal education; particularly in the course in My Liberty International English School has both of motivation intrinsic and extrinsic motivation. From 9 respondents, there are 6 students learning in English motivated in intrinsic motivation. Whereas, there are 3 students learning in English motivated in extrinsic motivation.

Third, the results of the research survey that intrinsic motivation, greater influence on students in learning English in My Liberty International School. Meanwhile, most of them motivated by intrinsic especially students from 15-16 years old. And then, students from 21-24 motivated by extrinsic in learning English. The motivation is as fundamental in learning a language especially for students learning English as motivated from inside or outside and there is a goal to be achieved.

Recommendation

Based on the result of this research, the researcher gives some recommendations to consider motivation that the students has in My Liberty International School, as follows:

The first is intrinsic motivation and extrinsic motivation has an influenced towards students in learning English. However, the students must be focused what they will be achieved pure because of own desire.

The second is for those students are doing anything that makes you interested to learn in English, you must be realized that you have the intrinsic motivation to achieve what you want in your dreams because it will be better for the future than extrinsic motivation.

The third is for further researcher, especially who interested to do the same issue, the researcher recommends to add some techniques of data collection such as interview or other to complete this technique. Eventually, the researcher expected this research can inspire and can be a reference for further researcher later.
