

CHAPTER V

CONCLUSSION AND SUGGESTION

Conclussion

Based on the explanation on chapter IV the Researcher found some metaphor in Emily Dickinson's poems entitle, Love is anterior to life; THAT I did always love; Yesterday is History; Not with a club the heart is broke; TO lose thee, sweeter than to gain; I'VE got an arrow here ; and To see her is a picture. There are 12 metaphors that the Researcher found in Emily Dickinson's poems by using Larson theory : topic, image and point of similarity.

metaphor is figure of speech that saying the one is another or A is B and B is A. There are two classification of metaphor based on larson, namely dead and live metaphor. Dead metaphor are those which are part of consrtruction of lexicon of language. When they are used, the person who listeners or reads does not think about the primary sense of the words, but only the idiomatic sense in directly. The dead metaphor is commonly defined as a metaphor which has lots its metaphorical sense. While, live metaphor are those which are constructed on the spot by the author or speaker to teach illustrate. It is one which is understood only after paying special anttention to the comparison which is being made.

The each meaning that included in Emily Dickinson poems have linkages between other poems, its because of the researcher analyzed in this research about love poem. Where, talking about love absolutely have more argument and opinion based on what are the reseacher knowledge about love. But, to get the meaning of the poem it needed special paying attention based on what the real meaning from each poem.

Furthermore, found the metaphor in Emily Dickinson's poem is different from the another poet, it's because the poems of Emily Dickinson's influence of dashes and she used classical language. But, it can be overcome to analyzed by the literal meaning and non literal meaning. Emily Dickinson was famous the women poet who created the 1800 poems, her poetry was influenced by the style of William Shakespeare's poems. Love poems of Emily Dickinson is aimed to the family, God and man. Although she did not get married but her love poetry is very deep and difficult to guess the meaning and it requires a deep understanding.

Suggestion

Metaphor is the part of figurative language that used in our daily life, so it can help our knowledge about metaphor. Because, metaphor not only about language but thought and make us to be knowing what are the best element in poetry. So, the readers can get the new information or new word from a poetry. Besides that, Emily Dickinson is great poet who never married, but she is able to love poem and its interested and deeper. While, her metaphor in poem making us to be think deeper to get the real meaning. Where, it can increase our knowledge about poem and another.

So, the researcher suggest who the readers or the other researcher are interested to analyzed a poem, it should be chosen Emily Dickinson as the poet who will be analyzed the poem especially metaphor in her love poem by using other theory or approach. Its because her poem is very deep and differents from other poet. There are many Emily Dickinson's poem such as love poem, life, nature, god, and death.
