

Chapter I

Introduction

Basic Consideration

The nature of humans as individuals is a trait that is born with. Simply, this trait can be seen in the desire to maintain the natural desire of human life through food, drink, and human curiosity. Every human being has a unique and distinctive characteristics, there are no human beings are exactly the same. Among many people, it turns out each has its own uniqueness. An individual has the physical characteristics or character trait that is be congenital, they also has the physical characteristics and characters or traits that are influenced by environmental factors. It has contributed in the formation of the typical characteristics of a person.

Humans as social beings in life cannot be separated from the interaction, socialization and communication. Communication is very important because with communication someone can express what they want and expect others in their activities. Typical characteristics of someone called with personality. Everyone has a different personality that is influenced by heredity and environmental factors interact with each other constantly. According to Prayitno (2009: 10-12) (As cited in Petrus, n.d) argued view of human with reference to the views of an expert " Platosays human is essentially characterized by the unity between what that exist in itself, the mind, the will, and desire.

The development of someone's personality are influenced development by their childhood. Social and family environment have impact which are good and bad for a person's future. For example, occurrences of divorce in a family where is the victims are children. When children cannot accept the situation will have depression and uncontrolled emotions that affect their personality and psychological condition. However, not all children who experience divorce experience it. In addition, as experienced by children who lived in the orphanage, they do not have a family of their own. However, when the social environment situation makes them comfort like having a family. Such a situation is also affecting their development into achieving and inspiring. According to Freud (As cited in Corey, p.15: 2013) humans in the determination by the forces of irrational, unconscious motivations and impulses biological and an instinctive.

The English Teacher movie is about an English teacher named Linda Sinclair. She was a teacher who became a model and admired by her students. But it did not come easily, she had to go through the harsh life of her childhood. Since childhood Linda grows into a strong child, living alone in an orphanage without the affection of her parents. She is not like other kids who love to play with her peers, so she has no friends. Little Linda loves to read literary books, her interest in the literary world made her own world that she is not interested in social life. Like wise with her teenage life. With life like that to make a hard worker and also her love of the world of literature makes her an English Teacher. Being a teacher changed her personality. She becomes more sensitive and caring with the people around her, especially to her students. However at the peak of her career she faces a problem that makes her almost lost her job and the trust of the people around her. Linda was involved in a scandal with her former student and it happened in the school environment that gave a bad impact for herself and her career. The incident made her have to try again to get their career and the trust. Besides that the incident gave an impact on her psychological condition.

The narrator show one of data Linda Sinclair:

Narrator : hers appeared to be a rather ordinary life, one of discipline...have these frugality small indignities, modest hope, and disappointments. and though her life may sound cold and dull. let me assure you that Ms.Linda Sinclair was neither.

(Act,00:01:37- 00:02:22)

This study focus on analyzing the main character who is Linda Sinclair. This research used psychological theory, which is used to study about personality. Therefore, this research will used Psychoanalysis approach. One of the main flows of history is established psychoanalytic theory Sigmund Freud. Psychoanalysis is a model of personality development, philosophy of human, and the methods of psychotherapy (Corey, p.13: 2013). Psychological approach many lean towards psychoanalysis Freud developed after research, that humans are controlled by the inner nature own. There are id, ego, and superego in humans that causes humans are always in a state of fight within theirselves, restless, anxious, depressed, and others.

Research Question

This research analyzed about the portrait of Linda Sinclair English Teacher in the movie. And this study focused on the main character Linda Sinclair which on the movie experienced in orphanage. This condition brought impact to her personality development. Thus the research question formulated into;

- How is Linda Sinclair personality portrayed in the English Teacher movie?

Objective of research

the objective of this research was to analyze Linda Sinclair personality development in the English Teacher movie.

Scope of study

This research focused on analyzing Linda Sinclair personality portrayed in the “English Teacher” movie. The main character had been analyzed her structure personality like Id, Ego, Superego based on Psychoanalysis theory

Significant of study

This research was expected to be a reference material for further research are interested in literature research, specifically on the theory of psychoanalysis. In addition, by watching the movie would give contribution in language teaching to increase student ability like listening and vocabulary that made them enjoy learning and mastering English.