

Chapter V

Conclusion and Suggestion

Conclusion

The Tell Tale Heart main focus is the narrator who through out the story can be seen as proud and confident person. It can be seen on how he illustrated every single action he took in murder the old man proudly and confidently. He also illustrated that he is the person who is trusted by the old man since he was able to come into the old man's room.

The conflict in the story the Tell Tale Heart appeared only the external conflict between the narrator and the nature of the vulture-eyes of the old man. Based on the result conflict of narrator with problem his self to kill the old man because one of the old man's eye which resemble the eyes of bird of prey in The Tell-Tale Heart by Edgar Allan Poe is able to conclude that the narrator is obsessed with the eyes of the old man who makes his rise and his blood tasted frozen so intend to kill the old man.

Suggestion

Based on the conclusion above, there are some suggestions. The first is this research is still limited only in structural analysis of the short story, so the researcher suggests to the further researchers to expand and conduct a research about structural analysis in a novel. Since the short story is shorter than a novel, the data collected will be also less. If we analyze a novel, the research will be more complete.
