

Chapter V

Conclusion and Suggestion

The goal of this chapter is stating the conclusion and suggestion from the finding and discussion before.

Conclusion

Based on the findings, it can be concluded that lecturers' of English Department have some types of feedback used to correct students' worksheets in learning writing. In teaching writing, lecturers provide a correction with a comment and give a mark in the wrong sentence. Moreover, feedbacks given by the lecturers on student worksheet are comment and error code. Teacher giving suggestion, compliment and explain what the students correct in their worksheets. This can be seen from the assignment of students who have corrections and lecturers ask them to correct their mistake. Furthermore, teacher identify the students error through the code, it is made students easy to found their mistake in worksheets. Circle code is one of the codes, teacher used to correct students' mistakes, in circle code the teacher add some word to made students understand what their mistake in the text, and the code is very simple and familiar to the students.

On the other hand, lecturers in English Department already know why they must return their students' assignment promptly, it is because the students will know their score and know their abilities in answering which are given to them. Most of the students think that feedback from the lecturer is useful in helping them to correct their mistakes and improving their ability. In addition, the positive feedback can affect the students' motivation in writing skill. The lecturers always give descriptive feedback which is appropriate with the students' achievement and necessities.

Furthermore, lecturer gave the feedback or correction related to the aspect of writing. So that, the students understand their needs to improve their skill in writing and the lecturer also always motivates students to keep writing. When the students often make the mistake in writing subject, lecturers always appreciate their work and suggest them to practice more in writing.

In short, this research found that the process of feedback by using the error code which is provided by the lecturers' could help students not only to improve their writing skill but also increase their motivation in learning. In addition, through the feedback, students can know their mistakes and how to revise it in the next paper.

Suggestion

Below is suggestions in three different categories. The suggestion is presented to give the advantages and for the better future in teaching and learning process itself, particularly in writing courses.

For Lecturers of Writing subject.

For lecturers in writing subject, it is important to give variation feedback to the students, such as telling what the students should do, after they get feedback, the sooner is the better. It means that, students must get their assignment, because they will know what their correction in the worksheets and score. So, they do not only know about their score, but also their strengths and weakness in their assignment. Moreover, the lecturer should check the students' assignment and give the comment or feedback about their project. Furthermore, if the lecturers give correction to the students like circling and underlining, it should be following by a comment for it helps the students to analyze their mistake in the worksheets. In addition, lecturers should be giving a simple sentence to correct the students' assignment or task. Importantly, the students need a positive feedback from their lecturers to improve the students' motivations and their confidence in learning English.

For the students

For students, since the finding have described students' ability in writing subject, this study is useful for the students to understand their mistakes and to help them increase their motivation in learning skill, particularly in writing skill. As the students of English Department, students need to have good skills in English. Not only in speaking, reading, and listening, but also in writing. Moreover, in last semester, we have to conduct a scientific writing which is well known as final thesis. We need to have a good writing skill to conduct this thesis. So, students need to pay attention on the lecturers' correction in their writing. It is also important for the students in mastering and comprehending the rule of academic writing in order to be a good academic writing.

For the next researcher

The researcher recommends to the next researcher, this research is helpful for the next researchers who want to conduct similar research about feedback. It will be an excellent research for the next researchers to find out the major of feedback in other sites of writing.
