

Chapter V. Conclusion and Suggestion

This chapter leads to the conclusion based on the results. Suggestion is also offered for the further research.

Conclusion

Based on the explanation in chapter IV the researcher found some metaphor in Nicholas Sparks novel entitle, "the notebook". There are 21 metaphors that the researcher found in Nicholas Sparks novel by using Larson theory: topic, image, and point of similarity. There are five classification of metaphor based on Newmark namely dead metaphor, cliché metaphor, standard metaphor, contemporary metaphor, and original metaphor.

In the novel, the metaphor is used in every circumstance to express the character, plot, and sentence of speech used. A metaphor is a figure of speech that saying the one is another or A is B and B is A. Metaphor has primary function to adorn particular sentence by having an imaginative expression. Metaphor is also used to express someone's thought related to feeling, romance, and life. It is often based on correlations which is perceived in daily experience. That is, metaphors that structure the ordinary conceptual system of culture, which is reflected in everyday language. It is a metaphor which could create new meaning. This kind of metaphor is capable in giving a new understanding of experience. Furthermore, the writing style of metaphor shows how word or phrase that does not carry its usual or basic meaning. In the novel, metaphor conveys an explicit message from the writers and uses comparison to be analyzed or understood the intention of it. Most of the metaphors are used in literature that conveys meaning and emphasizes impression to. In addition, metaphor is one from the writer to his or her feeling into words in a piece of work.

Suggestion

Metaphor is the part of figurative language that used in our daily life, so it can help our knowledge about metaphor. Because metaphor not only about language but thought and make us be knowing what are the best element in the novel. Thus, it is suggested to other researchers to seek other sources of data that have more numbers of data containing metaphorical. Besides, it is better to use other techniques or theories in conducting the research both in terms of metaphorical expressions so it could be compared to this research. And to the readers, this research expected to improve readers' understanding of the theory. Besides, it will raise the readers' small point of literature in the novel as well as contributing the readers to have an idea from this research. So, they will be able to create a new concept for further studies.

So, the researcher suggests to the readers or the other researcher are interested in analyzed a novel, it should be chosen Nicholas Sparks as the novel who will be analyzed the novel especially metaphor in his romantic gender novel by using other theories or approaches. Its because his novel is very deep and different from other novels. There are many genders of Nicholas Sparks.
