

CHAPTER V

CONCLUSSION AND SUGGESTION

Conclusion

Based on the analysis of findings and discussions that have been carried out previously on the character Tris, what is in the spotlight is her who has faced so many struggles based on her incompatibility with the norms or rules that have been formed in society in the story so that she becomes the main cause of her going through all these struggles and can be concluded that many struggles in the story include, such as Tris struggling alone to be able to accept her condition which at that time got the results of an aptitude test as a Divergent, Tris with her own faction namely Abnegation where Tris felt unworthy to live and obey the rules of her group, Tris with her family members, her older brother Tris feels overwhelmed by the standard of living in Abnegation governed by Caleb, Tris lastly struggles with her chosen faction, the Dauntless; that Tris wasn't physically strong enough to join the faction she chose.

After experiencing many conflicts in life, Tris turned into a strong character based on the internal motivation that grew within her, Tris still struggles to face all the struggles in the story. Like when Tris moved to Dauntless and felt that she was so weak among the other members, the motivation that keeps her going is her family, Tris wants to show her family that she is able to survive in her chosen faction and by subconsciously using ego defense mechanisms such as projection, denial, sublimation, and repression to manage her conflicts throughout the story.

Tris' self-defense mechanism influences every decision she makes which leads to the process of building herself to be better and better. The reason why Tris uses defense mechanisms several times and no destructed personality occurs is because Tris was brought up in a complete and loving family, basic things in a family like this prevent the worst possibilities from continuing to use Defense mechanisms. so that Tris can overcome the problems that arise without making her violate the norms that exist in life.

Suggestion

Following the analysis, the researcher should give recommendations. In the analysis of a literary work, the defense mechanism performed by the character is an important object of research since it uses psychoanalysis to obtain insight into the novel's defense mechanism. Being conscious of the characters' narcissism indirectly helps the reader comprehend and manage conflict. The researcher expects that this work will be useful in future studies. In particular, research on other defense mechanisms employed by characters in the story.

When the reader intends to study the same novel, the researcher advises the reader to read it more attentively in order to identify new issues that the researcher has not yet identified. Actually, this thesis has a gap that is not addressed, and the researcher suggests that future researchers look at this section where this research can be discussed using different methods and theories. This novel can be discussed using feminism theory, specifically analyzing the treatment process of a society targeting the female protagonist; additionally, studying with the same novel will expand and become even more various.
